Economic & Electric Changes

A Changing Market

High-horsepower, low production number, naturally aspirated, manual transmission, modern classic, exotic, and vintage cars are exploding in value. The “mainstream change” to EV coupled with the post covid car market is causing a huge market swing for certain types of cars that are seeing values double or even triple year over year.

Market Continues To Rise

"The used car market has risen OVER 40% in the last year alone" – CNN

High Demand, Low Supply

"High demand and low supply are driving car prices to record highs" – Yahoo Business

Big Profits

"High profitability is likely to persist, even after auto production starts to recover" – Forbes

Big Revenue

Revenue in the Passenger Cars market is projected to reach US $553.70bn in 2023. – Statista

Recent Stats

Strong Market Strong Demand

The US is moving towards a European type car selling model, meaning dealers will hold less inventory if any (refer to Tesla model) and customers will now have to order cars and wait for them to come. This creates less supply and more demand which creates better profits for sellers and dealers and a stronger used car market overall as well.

Recent Returns

Unlimited Possibilities

Certain classic trucks continue to have extremely high profit margins; with many having a cult like followings and with 2.18 million new trucks sold last year alone, trucks are here to stay and everyone wants a piece of the vintage action that continues to climb.

Don't Wait

The Time Is Now

- The market is at a particularly ripe moment currently. Supply is low and demand is high, the car game has changed and a growing number of people are becoming more aware of this asset class and its potential so the time to act is now. The wealthy continue to buy blue chip cars with the lower classes unloading some cars at the moment, creating the potential for extremely strong profits for those in the know.

Take advantage of this once in a lifetime opportunity while the market is still red hot and put your money to work. We've produced amazing results for our clients and would love to do the same for you.
